The Republican National Platform

[From the New York Evening Post]

The first characteristic of life everywhere is change, growth, adaptation to new living circumstances and events. The point which marks the end of change in a body organized [illegible] is the end of its life. That this change shall be true growth, that every movement shall be in the line of development and manifestation of the principles it embodies, and which justify its existence, is the responsibility of those who control it [illegible] it.

Four years ago the Republican party declared to the country its determination that the rebellion should be suppressed by force of arms; that slavery should be stripped from the land; that the soldiers of the republic, after saving it from destruction, should themselves be honored and protected by the people and should be forever held in memory; and that in the financial administration of the government the leading principles should be faithfulness to all our obligations, and a jealous care of the national honor.

The voice of the people sanctioned this declaration at the time with an emphasis which admitted no question and the history of the nation from that day until now has been the fulfilment of it. There has been no instance in American politics in which the march of events has with such rapidity and thoroughness left behind it the absorbing questions of one Presidential campaign before entering the next. Rebellion has been suppressed by force of arms; slavery has been extirpated from the land; the soldiers of the republic are [illegible] from war, and are only distinguished from the whole body of citizens into which they have quietly merged by the honor of their past achievements and the grateful remembrance of the nation.

Of the great questions of 1864 which are still alive and likely to enter into the canvass of 1868 there remains only that of our financial system. The outline of it, as then traced by the people in their wise resolve to be upright and honest, stands still unimpaired in their convictions and will; and even those who a few months ago hoped that the people would be corrupted by the burdens now so heavy upon them, and would confer power upon shameless teachers of dishonesty, are already nearly silenced by their indignant assertion of their honor and truth.

What, then, remains for the Republican party of the day? Shall it adopt the language of men who say that its work is done? Shall it rest content with its achievements, and ask to be dismissed into history with an honorable epitaph? Its answer is contained in the resolutions of the Chicago Convention, and it seems reasonable to expect that the people will accept it as the worthy and proper answer.

For the Republican party has its existence not in a mere protest against a passing form of wrong, but in the affirmation of right; not in opposition to human slavery, but in direct avowal of civil and political equality. Slavery in the form of a conspiracy against the Republic is put down. Slavery in the form of an oligarchy insulting human nature and poisoning political thought with sophisms to prove that might makes right is dead. But it has left a great estate divided now among many heirs, and so long as a fragment of its property in ideas, or of its property in influence, remains to block up the way to human freedom in its broadest, fullest movement, so long there is work to do for the party of freedom; so long that party must move with events and be the pioneer of the nation into an even greater future. It will be well for this whole country if this can still be done by the same organization which has already done so much; if the Republican party can be so far preserved from corruption, dissension and fanaticism, its three most dangerous foes, as still to be entrusted with the Government. For its central principle, that out of which its working ideas and its strength with the people has grown, is justice. That this is its character has been conspicuously shown by the opposition to it, which has always been founded on its [illegible] a party on some aim or policy pronounced by the popular conscience to be unjust. And the Chicago resolutions of yesterday, whatever faults a minute criticism might detect in the language or in the form of some of them, are as a whole an explicit and satisfactory declaration of the general sense of justice as applied to the living questions of the day.

Foremost among them comes the recognition of what has already been done toward the reorganization of society in the South on the principle of equal rights, and the purpose now that beyond doubt of the American people that suffrage in the new States of mixed population shall not be withheld from either class on account of color. It is not improbable that the contest before the people will be fought on this issue. The Democratic leaders seem to have stood still for many years, while the world is moving; and still perhaps trust the power of silly appeals to prejudice of race and color. In reality a great part of the strength they now appear to have has grown out of objections honestly entertained by friends of equal rights, to some of the special methods and temporary modes of the majority in Congress, and not out of any disaffection toward the cardinal points of Republican doctrine. When the great issue comes in its simplicity before the people, that apparent strength is sure to melt away before the fervent fidelity of the masses to justice.

The resolutions upon the finances and the debt, though very general, could scarcely be improved, but call for a more full discussion hereafter. The repudiators have been so generally rejected by public opinion that no great party is likely to avow views essentially different from these. The same may be said with still greater assurance of the policy of the Convention towards naturalized citizens and foreign immigration, and of its promise of substantial gratitude to the soldiers and seamen of the war, and of support and protection to the widows and children of the fallen.

Nor would it be reasonable to object to an expression of disappointment and indignation from the Republican party toward the President of the United States, even were its language more bitter than that of the ninth resolution. Whatever he as an officer has deserved of a court or of Congress, no man can doubt that he has justly incurred rebuke and rejection from the party which raised him to power. That its rebuke might have been expressed more effectively by language of greater dignity and reserve does not detract from its essential justice.

But the convention has done wisely and well to add, as a pendant to its denunciation of Mr Johnson, the resolution proposed by Mr Schurz, which shows that it is not the President's sympathy with Southern distress or his kind indulgence towards repentant rebels that has brought upon him the wrath of the party. Justice is no longer justice when it ceases to be tempered with mercy. The people of the United States are alone in history in that moral greatness which can afford to pardon treason. Nothing in their character and actions has so ennobled themselves or so surprised and impressed Europe as their successful lenity to vanquished rebellion. Without an expression of this magnanimous spirit the authoritative declaration of principles by the party of justice would have been incomplete, and would have illustrated but imperfectly the character and record of the chieftain who is their standard bearer.

The woman who fails to reform a man of the habit of drinking while engaged to him will have a mighty task to do so after marriage. Think of this young woman. Better remain single than marry a man that loves liquor.

Map of the School Districts of Multnomah County

S[illegible] Clerks are often [illegible] tell what farms lie within their districts. [illegible] through mistake [illegible] few [illegible] they are liable [illegible] assessment [illegible] the people [illegible] know their own [illegible] County Commissioners [illegible] County Surveyor [illegible] taken in what [illegible] records [illegible] the Superintendent of Schools. The map has been completed and [illegible] in good style. One copy of it will be found hanging with other county maps in the office of the County Clerk, and [illegible] copy will be [illegible] in the office of the Superintendent of Schools. In order [illegible] all the records [illegible] new record made of every district [illegible] their boundaries with reference [illegible] original and to explain [illegible] records.

The maps made by Mr Pennoyer during his official term in 1860 has been final authority to that date in doubtful cases. Conflicting or incomplete boundaries have been defined according to the best evidence of the petitioners and the official act of the Superintendent at that time in office. In one or two cases the lines [illegible] turn their starting point but ran on indefinitely [illegible] that could give no limits to a district. These errors have been corrected.

MANAGEMENT OF THE SCHOOL

Several school districts continue their school terms six months, a few nine months, and one or two outside of Portland have continued the whole year, employing the best teachers. This is wise if the expense can be paid by the income of the current year or by taxes [illegible] but if the Directors must draw upon the next year's appropriation to pay the present salary of the teacher it is not wise to prolong the term so much. Six months of school every year are more valuable to pupils than nine months one year and only three months the next. Yet it is believed that parents are finding it cheaper and in all respects better to educate all their children in the common studies within their own district and under their own eye by employing good teachers than to send a few off to the leading schools, and it is better for the Academies that the pupils come more mature and better prepared. Our schools have suffered by the haste to put children forward before they have understood the elementary studies. The most thorough teaching in the primary department gives the best results in the higher ones. This fact appears in graded schools. The present arrangement in the North Portland and to some extent in the Central school, by which only two classes occupy a room, so that while one is reciting the other is learning their lessons, thus alternating through the day, affords ample time for every lesson, enables the teacher to attend to the progress of every pupil and gives promise of steady and thorough advancement. Such division of labor cannot be made in small schools with all grades of scholars, but that can be the aim of directors and teachers as their pupils increase in number.

TEACHERS.

Teaching is a profession. Like all other professions it will be chosen by those who have a desire for it. When a person acquires the knowledge and exhibits the wisdom and skill needed to govern and teach a school that person should be employed and well paid for the service. A man who wants a good wagon or a good plow or a good house is willing to pay for the skill and labor of the mechanic, and he who wants a good lawyer or physician is willing to pay for the use of their knowledge and skill. In like manner he ought to be willing to pay for the services of those who teach his children. The law of demand and supply ought to come into full play in this matter.

Let the teachers who receive number one certificates from Normal Institutes or Boards of Examiners, or who bring other assurance of their fitness for office, agree upon a tariff, or fix the minimum of their prices for the term or per year, and they will secure better salaries. Let one well tried teacher do it and he will be in greater demand. There are some who cannot be spared from the school room. Intelligent employers know this to be so. They soon become weary of poor teachers. On the other hand let districts learn that it is as truly a wise economy to have first-class teachers as for a trader to have first-class goods. Let them make provision for such teachers and they will in due time have them.

It has been the aim of the undersigned during his official term to stimulate every district in the county to improve its own school by employing good teachers for longer terms, by improving school houses when needful, by reducing the number and variety of books and thus of classes, and by giving a thorough drill in the common studies.

It has also been his aim to encourage and to call attention to those teachers who seem to devote themselves to this work as a profession and who love the work. It has not been done invidiously but from a sense of duty to them and to the friends of education. If there has been any omissions or errors in this matter, or if any statement respecting any district has been at all inaccurate, it has been unintentional. In giving up the care of the public schools of the county to my successor I do it with the earnest hope that they have continued prosperity under his supervision.

Something New and Startling.

A MAN PROPOSES TO MAKE THE DESCENT OF NIAGARA FALLS IN A RUBBER BOAT

[From the Detroit Free Press.]

Since the days of the Blondin furor, when men and women stood aghast at the foolhardy daring of the great rope walker in the performance of his remarkable feats at Niagara Falls, no such excitement has been known. A project has recently been started, however, which if carried into execution will eclipse any feat of daring ever yet attempted.

Charles Ockford, of this city, the sixty hour skater, has conceived the idea of making the perilous passage over the Falls of Niagara in an India rubber life boat of peculiar construction. A few weeks ago the idea suggested itself to his mind, and upon communicating it to some Eastern gentlemen it was proposed by them that a purse of $[illegible],000 be raised to induce him to make the attempt. He accordingly perfected his scheme and the contract for building the boat has been let to the Goodyear Rubber Company for $1,000. The boat will be an oblong with a mean diameter of eight feet, six inches thick at the top and sides and three feet thick at the bottom. A shaft of the same material will extend from side to side in the centre, on which will be swung on a pivot a seat to which the adventurous occupant will be fastened. Opening at the top will be an aperture sufficiently large for him to get inside, after which it will be filled with air and closed up. It is calculated that sufficient air can be retained to sustain life twenty minutes. A small cable will be attached to the ball by which it will be towed after the descent shall have been made, for which purpose parties will be stationed in boats immediately below the falls.

The model of this novel craft is now in this city and there is no doubt that the attempt to carry this startling project into execution will be made during the present season. Mr Ockford is quite confident that he will succeed, but the chances for success certainly look dubious. Should he succeed, Mr Sydney [illegible] of [illegible] will also undertake the same feat.

An [illegible] recently [illegible] publish in his paper a statement that half the people who attend the opera in that city do not know the difference between a symphony and a sardine.

The Postal Telegraph System

Apropos to the introduction of a resolution in Congress authorizing an inquiry into the expediency of the government purchasing the telegraph lines of the country and conducting their operations, it may be well to turn our attention to England where the same subject is under discussion. The two preceding ministries have been pledged to the support of a transfer of the telegraphs to the control of the government. But the project has moved there with characteristic slowness. It is thought, however, that the day is not far distant when the transfer will be completed.

The arguments in its favor have been well examined and a proposed plan of operations has been put in practice on paper. The former resolve themselves briefly into the following shapes: 1 The public is badly served by the telegraphic system now in vogue. 2 There are not more than one thousand places in the kingdom at present connected with the wires, a number entirely too small for the accommodation of the people. 3 Charges are not only too high but capricious, charges for delivery being piled on to charges for transmission. 4 Absence of qualifications in the operators and clerks engenders errors and uncertainty of details. 5 Uncertainty of delivery.

The plan of operation as gathered from the rough drafts is as follows: Central telegraphing offices will be opened at each of the ten district offices of London, and in the chief offices of all the principal towns; the sorting and receiving offices everywhere will be subordinate stations, and each group of these will be connected with the central district station, which in turn will be put in communication with the more important of the other central offices. The charge for simple transmission and delivery as above described will be one shilling for twenty words and six pence for every ten words additional sent between any two places in Great Britain or Ireland. Thus 10,000 post offices, 20,000 postmen will at once become available for the collection and delivery of telegrams, the telegraphic system will be worked with greater economy than before, by better officials and with vastly increased power, and no one who knows the effect on the finance of the postal department of lowering the rates of postage can doubt that an immense increase in the number of telegrams will at once follow the adoption of the scheme. As a case in point, Parisian experience may be cited. On the reduction of the charge for a message from one franc to a half franc the number of messages was multiplied tenfold in the course of six months. There is but little doubt that this experiment would prove successful.

If the arguments in favor of the State taking into its control the mail system amount to anything, these kindred arguments relating to telegrams should be of equal weight. The experiment has been tried in Belgium and Switzerland and with the most gratifying results, for in both these countries telegrams are virtually brought to the doors, they are sent cheaply, with a commendable promptness, and yet with profit to the State. Their delivery is insured, and in case of losses the State is security for losses that may be sustained in consequence. Our statesmen should weigh the question, and if any or all of the advantages proposed can be realized by a change, our government may be justified in making a corresponding change in our system.

Political Matters at the [illegible]

[New York correspondent of the Sacramento Union.]

The Boston Post, the Albany Argus, and other leading organs have raised the names of "Hancock and Adams" (good Revolutionary names, it may be owned,) and are advocating a thorough change of base. They foreshadow an active opposition to Pendleton and his policy in the coming Democratic Convention, and call for conservative ideas and a quiet sepulture of Copperheadism. It is stated that the leading Democrats of the South are disposed to give Northern Copperheadism the cold shoulder, and to seek an affiliation with the war Democrats. In this event, what will become of its leading organ, the La Crosse Democrat and its "hundreds of thousands of subscribers"? The name of Chase is still mentioned in some quarters in connection with the Democratic nomination, but the old friends of the Chief Justice in this city scout, or affect to hold in scorn, the suggestion that he could be induced to accept a nomination at the hands of that party. The Times of this morning, referring to the movement in the Democratic ranks for the abandonment of the old anti war and negro-proscription ideas, declares that "the star of the war Democrats is in the ascendant," and that the "[illegible] men, pure and simple (?) are to be set aside as blind leaders whose guidance ends in the ditch."

CONSERVATIVES COMING OVER.

By the by, it is significant of the change which is taking place in the ranks of "conservative men" as the result of the nomination of Grant and Colfax by the Republicans, that the paper just named has actually forced into an acceptance of the doctrines of reconstruction and negro suffrage, and avows its desire to see those [illegible] now carried out. It says, in this morning's issue: "The radicals have carried their point. The policy which they forced upon Congress has been indorsed and adopted by the Republican party in National Convention, and may now be fairly made the test of party fealty. We do not believe that its original adoption was an act of wisdom, but we do believe that far greater evils would follow its overthrow and reversal now than are likely to flow from its enforcement. We desire to see it carried out." The Ann[illegible] weathercock has also discovered that the wind blows too strong in the direction of the Chicago nominations to sail its private yacht any longer on a sea of speculation, and begins to show a disposition to hoist in the Henrietta along with its Gettysburg and kindred schemes, and square away the canvas for a run before the popular Presidential breeze. This morning's Herald thinks "the rail splitter and tailor," though a powerful team, will be fully matched by the present nominations of the "tanner and editor." "There's nothing like leather."

The New York Tribune says of the Simon of the Senate: "The only reason Mr Grimes does not leave the Republican party entirely and join Mr Johnson is that then he would be under the necessity of agreeing with somebody, which seems to be foreign to his nature." It further says: "It seems as if no generation could pass without giving us one man to live among the warnings of history. We have had Benedict Arnold, Aaron Burr, Jefferson Davis, and now we have James W Grimes." The opinion we pass upon Mr Grimes we do not feel at liberty to extend to any other Senator in our party.

Mr Sedley of the Round Table and the Week will not permit a single line to enter the former paper that is not original, but the same gentleman palmed off a poem entitled "The Battle of Bunker Hill" upon the citizens of Chicago, 12 years ago, as from his own pen, when it was written by Fred S Cozzens, of New York.

Conditions of Admission.

The action of Congress in providing for the admission of the lately rebellious States fully sustains the position which was taken by Mr. Logan and the Union party of Oregon in the late canvass, and utterly disproves the assertions and charges made by the opposing party. They charged that under the reconstructed laws the rights of the Southern States to regulate the exercise of the elective franchise, after their restoration, would be taken away; that they were not to be admitted except on the fundamental condition that their Constitutions should never be changed so as to limit or reduce the suffrage. Acts have passed for the admission to representation in Congress of the States of Arkansas, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama and Florida; and the proposition to forbid any future abridgement of the elective franchise by those States was distinctly rejected. This action was taken by the Senate some days ago; and now the telegraph reports that it is concurred in by the House. The doctrine is that any State which has an established, recognized government, and is in its proper relations with the Government of the Union, has the right to control and regulate the exercise of the elective franchise for itself, and to amend its Constitution in any way, subject only to the Constitution of the United States. The whites have a large majority in most of the Southern States, and if they think proper, they have the right and the power, by combining together, to disfranchise the blacks. But the Southern "Democracy" will never consent to this, as they are just now busily "courting the negro vote," and expecting to capture a very large part of it.

The Northern Railroad.

The Northern Pacific Railroad Company have published for the information of the Pacific Railroad Committee of Congress a pamphlet containing "a statement of the resources and merits of the enterprise which the Company have in hand." It is represented that there is an area of 500,000 square miles to which the Northern Pacific Railroad is essential as a trunk communication from east to west. The estimated cost of the line from Lake Superior to Puget Sound, including the Oregon branch, is $156,857,500. The subsidy asked from the Government is about $60,000,000. The length of the line from Lake Superior to [illegible] Puget Sound is stated at 1,775 miles. Distance from New York, via Chicago and St. Paul, to Seattle, 3,124 miles, which is 237 miles less than the distance from New York to San Francisco via Chicago and Salt Lake. It is added that if the routes be extended to the shores of Asia, this difference will be further augmented in favor of the Northern route by 500 to 700 miles of ocean navigation. We copy a paragraph from the pamphlet, on "the effect of the construction of this road":

> To construct this road will change the whole order of things at the West. It will, in an inconceivably short space of time, convert these [illegible], now lying waste and unproductive, into fruitful fields; it will supplant the herds of buffalo, elk, and deer, with countless flocks and herds of domestic animals; it will occupy the [illegible] of water now running waste, with manufactories and mechanics' shops, giving comfort and [illegible] lucrative employment to thousands on thousands of intelligent citizens; it will extract from the mountains untold millions of the precious metals; it will raise and utilize vast [illegible] of coal now lying [illegible] and [illegible] in the [illegible]; it will convert the iron and copper [illegible] now [illegible] in the earth into implements for the [illegible] of man, or commodities for commerce; it will change the forests into thousands of new forms, for the use, comfort and profit of our people; it will fill the channels of commerce with merchandise, and give additional employment and [illegible] wealth to the busy throng that now crowd our [illegible] commercial centres; it will induce an [illegible] emigration of the industrial classes from the Old World, and furnish them cheap and comfortable [illegible]; it will terminate Indian wars, and [illegible] the savage Indian, who now roams over [illegible] fertile plains and rich mountains, by [illegible] industrious, civilized population; and finally, it will add, almost beyond computation, to the wealth and taxable property of the country, and with the development of other portions of the West, by other and similar lines of railroad, furnish the means for the PAYMENT OF THE NATIONAL DEBT, which now hangs like an [illegible] upon our [illegible].

Congressional Aid.

The following subsidies are now asked from the Government, and are being pressed upon the consideration of Congress by those [illegible] interested in them:

[illegible] Pacific Railroad Company	$60,000,000
[illegible] and Puget Sound R. R. Company	30,000,000
Inter-[illegible] Pacific Railroad Line	19,000,000
M[illegible] Levee, [illegible] Way and Steamship [illegible]	[illegible]
Improvement of the [illegible] river	2,000,000
Europ[illegible] and New York Steamship Line	3,500,000
Atlantic and Pacific Railroad Company	65,000,000
Louisiana and Mississippi Levees	8,000,000
Port Royal Railroad Company	750,000
Union [illegible] Company, [illegible] District	47,000,000
Total	$253,250,000

This, the New York Evening Post calls "plucking the national goose." The enterprises, all, are important ones. But when the number and extent of these demands are considered, and the financial difficulties of the country taken into account, it will not be thought strange that Congress hesitates to grant aid to projects which we on the Northwest coast are interested in. It is useless for any one to censure Congress; for if the opposite party were in power it would be infinitely less likely to grant the aid desired for the development of the country.

The following is from a column of twaddle mainly about "ourself," published by Beriah in the Herald of Tuesday. The same interesting interrogatories have appeared in that paper almost daily, for two years. And now once more Beriah demands to know,—"Who can specify a single act of ours in violation of any moral or civil law? Who can cite a single utterance of ours in commendation or defence of lawless violence, or a sentence calculated to incite the maddened multitude to acts of violence? Who can name the instance in which we have failed to fulfill any obligation pertaining to a moral, law-abiding citizen?"

In the Second Ward on Monday, the Democrats brought up a half-breed to vote for Rosenheim and a "white man's government." He was a laborer on one of the railroads, was not a resident of the city, and sold his vote. But the way the Republicans present cheered for a "white man's government" while this yellow Democrat was being dragged up to the polls was no doubt edifying for the "nigger equality" shriekers to hear.

The Montana Gazette thinks that it will not be long before the Prickly Pear Valley and the whole country lying between the mountains and the Missouri is surveyed into townships and [illegible].

STATE ITEMS.

D. B. Turney proposes to start a Republican paper at McMinnville to be called The Yamhillian.

The county seat of Baker county was changed at the late election by a vote of the people. Majority for Baker City 191.

A call is published in a La Grande paper for a meeting at that place to take into consideration the matter of furnishing aid to the Oregon and Idaho telegraph.

A warehouse is being erected on the river in county about a mile above the Salem ferry landing for the accommodation of the people of that side of the river who want to ship produce.

C. M. Lockwood & Co. have been awarded the contract by the Postmaster General for carrying the mails from Salt Lake City to the Dalles, via Boise City and Canyon City. The service will be a daily one. The route will be considerably shortened by this arrangement, as the long detour to the north by La Grande and Umatilla will be avoided.

The La Grande Times says, one day last week Gen. Stevens, on removing the wrapper and opening a volume of Patent Office reports, just received from Washington, set at liberty a fly that immediately took advantage of his reprieve and made good use of his wings. He must have been a close prisoner for not less than 40 days, and traveled in the mean time about 2,000 miles.

The La Grande Times says that two horse thieves recently stole two horses apiece from Mr. Rider and a Mr. Carpenter about eight miles this side of Boise City, and started for the Columbia. They sold one of the horses on Burnt river and came on with the other three to Grande Ronde valley, where they remained three days. The election coming off in the meantime, they voted the Democratic ticket, swearing in their votes. Having performed this duty they left the valley and came over to Swift's, to which place they were pursued, arrested and taken back to Boise City.

Family Troubles of the Democracy.

[From the New York Times.]

Mr. Belmont's claim to be the dictator of the Democratic party is the occasion of more than a little murmuring. As Chairman of the National Committee he is engaged in an effort to out-manoeuvre the friends of Mr. Pendleton, and with New York help succeeded in postponing the nomination until July. Democratic Congressmen protest, but Mr. Belmont is unyielding. A respectful request for the naming of an earlier day is met with a gruff assertion that the proposal for a change comes too late. There is grumbling in consequence; and some of the journals are unburdening their minds by some plain talk about the blundering and arrogance of the New York managers in general and of Mr. Belmont in particular.

The amiability of these fault-finders will not be improved by the tone or style in which a not unreasonable remonstrance of the Philadelphia Age is met by the World. "Pennsylvania is not of much account" is, substantially, the lesson inculcated by our contemporary. It is "not much impressed by the character of the delegates" Pennsylvania "has chosen to send" to the Convention. "They are rather of a seedy type." Philadelphia, too, is "stolidly and malignantly" Radical, and the whole State has a bad name. It must stand aside, therefore, while New York takes the lead and manages the nomination. And as with Pennsylvania so with other remonstrating States. Mr. Belmont and the World find shelter behind the party majority in this city, and insist upon their right to lay the wires and select and clothe the candidate. Mild-mannered Democrats will, perhaps, submit to the snubbing. Others not so constituted will, doubtless, pay it back with interest. There will be a little old-fashioned excitement, all in the family, before Mr. Belmont's day of triumph arrives.

In the end, we dare say, Mr. Pendleton will be laid upon the shelf. Pockets are often more potent than friendships, and to the former Mr. Belmont holds the key. Only from this point of view are his pretensions likely to be tolerated. The silk-stocking Democrats who supply the funds of a campaign are egregiously mistaken, however, if they expect to have easy work in "toppling over" Pendleton. Beyond all doubt he is at this moment the strongest of the list of men from whom the Democrats propose to make their selection. His strength is not confined, as many suppose, to the Western States. Pennsylvania is scarcely less earnest in his support than Ohio, Indiana or Illinois. Specie-paying California has named him as her first choice. And unless Mr. Belmont play the conjuror with marvelous skill, he will experience more difficulties than will be agreeable in his own State. The rank and file of the Democracy here are heartily with Pendleton; and the passage in the Assembly of what may be termed Pendletonian resolutions touching the debt, by a strict party vote, demonstrates the existence of a much stronger feeling on the subject than the World ventures to recognize.

The force of those elements, and their evident tendency to crystalize in opposition to the interests of which Mr. Belmont is the champion, indicate the coming of lively times for the Democracy. If Belmont succeeds in crowding Pendleton off the track, it is not improbable that the Pendleton interest will contrive in turn to thwart Belmont, and rebuke the New York gentlemen who imagine they carry the nomination in their pockets.

Democratic Gathering in New Haven.

The Hartford correspondent of the Boston Advertiser thus refers to the gathering at the inauguration of Gov. English in New Haven:

> "That Ex-President Pierce, Mayor Hoffman, and other leading Democrats from other States should attend the inauguration is a poor subject for comment. It has a political significance just at this time. Gov. English entertained these gentlemen last evening in a sumptuous style—not merely because he likes to extend hospitality, but chiefly because there were some things to be talked up regarding the Presidential nomination at the New-York Convention. Mr. English has a sharp eye upon the Vice-Presidency, and believes that if Pendleton is nominated his own chances of getting the second place on the ticket are better than those of any of his rivals. With Hancock or Gov. Seymour, of New York, as the chosen candidate, Mr. English's prospects are, of course, worth nothing. Pendleton is his forlorn hope. It was announced that Gov. Seymour would attend the inauguration—but he didn't. Perhaps he was unwilling to commit himself, even by association, with the Mayor of New-York and the gentleman from the granite hills. One might not be far out of the way in saying that the gathering of these politicians indicate the beginning of a strong movement in the East in favor of Pendleton, with the understanding that the West will come up to the mark and support English. A ticket thus made up would be sufficiently kangaroo to be Democratic, as Mr. Pendleton favors repudiation, and Mr. English has upward of $100,000 invested in Government bonds."

The Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle gets howling mad because only a portion of the negro vote could be secured for the Democratic ticket. Of those self-respecting negroes who decline association with the Democratic party, the Chronicle says: "We must prove to them that while they exercise the ballot against our interests, we can and will control the bread against them." So there is no objection to giving the negro bread, or eating it with him, if he only votes "Democratic."

From Chicago papers to the 26th May, we learn that the campaign for Grant and Colfax is opening gloriously throughout the "Great West." We see accounts of immense Union gatherings in all parts of the country, and the masses are thoroughly awake to the demands of the hour.

A new paper called the Illustrated News has been started at Chicago, which in point of mechanical execution and literary ability is intended to be equal to the best Eastern illustrated journals.

The Idaho World makes a good deal of noise about the result of the election in Oregon. Some have ascribed the Democratic triumph here to O'Meara's departure from the State. It helped, certainly.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO JUNE 16.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—In the Senate the currency bill came up. The question was on the amendment of Morrill of Vermont, as follows: For the issue of any increase of national circulation provided in this section, the Secretary of the Treasury shall hereby be authorized and required to permanently withdraw an equal amount of United States notes.

Morgan gave notice that when in order he will add the following: "And U. S. notes so retired shall not be obtained by the sale of bonds, but shall be taken from funds in the Treasury, collected in the ordinary way."

Cole addressed the Senate in favor of the proposition of the committee to make $20,000,000 increase. The debate was continued by Morrill, Conkling and Fessenden.

In the House a resolution for an increase of 20 per cent. compensation for salary of civil employees, was agreed to by 13 majority.

Schenck offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That in the judgment of the House it will inflict a serious loss to the national revenues to delay the revisions of taxes on distilled spirits and tobacco until the same can be accomplished by a general revision of the entire internal revenue system, and that the Committee of Ways and Means is hereby instructed to report without delay, separate bills for the revision of the taxes on the manufacture and sale of distilled spirits and tobacco.

Schenck expressed a hope that the resolution would not be insisted on.

The Speaker stated that the debate was not in order.

Schenck declared the committee could not make a revision as soon as they could get through with the ordinary bills. The previous question was seconded—64 to 56.

Pile moved to lay the resolutions on the table—ayes 61 noes 71.

Schenck moved to reconsider the vote seconding the previous question. He desired to know whether the House would, before disposing of the question, refuse to hear him.

Logan moved a suspension of the rules to enable him to offer a preamble and resolutions providing for the appointment of a committee of five to inquire into the propriety and expediency of removing the seat of the general government to a point near the geographical centre of the Republic. The House refused. Ayes 43, noes 67.

Robinson, by unanimous consent, offered a resolution requesting the President to take measures to secure the release from imprisonment of Warren and Costello under sentence in Great Britain, for words and acts spoken and done in the United States, and to take measures to secure their return to the flag, with such ceremonies as may be appropriate to the occasion. The resolution was then adopted.

Ashley, of Ohio, moved to suspend the rules for the purpose of offering a resolution relating to the assassination of Solomon Dill and other persons in South Carolina. Pending the vote, the House adjourned.

Washington News.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—The award of contract for carrying the overland mails to California was to Carlton Spaides of Chicago, the rate being one thousand dollars per day. Length of line, 1095 miles.

Senator Doolittle did not attend the Chase meeting at Philadelphia. Being chairman of the executive committee of Democracy and the conservative members of Congress, he did not feel at liberty to take active measures in advance of the Convention relative to the candidate to be nominated.

The President to-day withdrew from the Senate the nomination of Gen. Mott as Minister to Costa Rica, at Mott's own request.

More Trouble in the Cabinet.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—The Intelligencer this morning has an article calling on Secretary McCulloch to resign. It is very bitter on the Secretary. It is supposed to have been inspired by the President.

It is the intention of Reverdy Johnson, the new Minister to England, to leave in the middle of July. No change will be made in the Secretaryship of Legation.

Presidential Speculations.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Prominent Democrats assert that the President will not make any Cabinet changes until the 4th of July convention has declared its principles. If Pendleton is nominated, appointments will be given exclusively to Democrats; but if Chase, then many must be tendered to the Republicans, who thereby could be induced to support him. There are also many who profess to believe Johnson will be nominated and claim that he will go into the convention with nearly all the Southern votes, and that many at the North who do not either like Pendleton or Chase, could be induced to support him. Certain it is that such a movement is on foot, and has been actively canvassed here.

The Herald correspondent at Richmond says he is authorized to state that Chase will accept the Democratic nomination on a platform embodying universal suffrage. The Chief Justice is now in Richmond, and receives numerous letters daily from Republicans North, offering to co-operate with the Democratic party in case he is the nominee, and the platform is of the kind set forth.

Wooley—Whisky.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Witness Wooley has been finally discharged from further attendance before the Impeachment Investigating Committee and left the city this evening.

Delegations of distillers are here from Kentucky, Ohio, Illinois and Indiana are here urging the Ways and Means Committee to reduce the tax on whisky to fifty cents a gallon. They state that by reducing the tax to this figure the Government will receive from one State alone more revenue in three months than thus far has been received from the whole United States at the present figure. They say it will be impossible for illicit distillers to ply their vocation further. If the tax be reduced, the Government would at once realize $40,000,000 from whisky now held back from the market by themselves and other large distillers who cannot compete with illicit distillers who defraud the Government of the tax and sell whisky at low rates. The Committee are clearly of the opinion that the tax should be reduced but has not yet settled on the figures to be incorporated in the bill now before the House.

The Fenian Scare.

TORONTO, June 16.—The volunteers and regulars are actively preparing for any emergency consequent upon Fenian rumors. A brigade will be stationed in each of the cities of Toronto, Hamilton and London. A force will be stationed at Collingwood and other exposed points, and reserves will be organized and take the field if necessary.

Accidents.

NEW YORK, June 16.—John S. Loomis' planing mill, and several adjoining buildings, were burned last night. Loss, $600,000.

FORTRESS MONROE, June 15.—Twenty-three lives were lost on the barque Iota wrecked off Cape Hatteras.

West Indies.

NEW YORK, June 15.—The Herald's Port au Prince correspondent says: Salnave in a recent interview with the United States, French and English Ministers declared his determination not to yield and to hold his position at Port au Prince under every circumstance. The recent attack on the town by Caicos was repulsed. All the prisoners taken by Salnave were slain. Subsequently Salnave's cavalry were defeated and Salnave set fire to the north and northeast suburbs. On the 5th, Salnave sent a deputation of his Generals to the army of the southern revolutionists to effect a compromise. He proposed to retain his office for three years, to give the Ministry to the southern generals and that the army of the south should enter immediately into the city and join with him in repelling the Caicos. These propositions were indignantly refused.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

LONDON, June 15.—The daily News says: The long experience and training and high character of Reverdy Johnson guarantees that he will well represent the United States as a whole and not sectionally.

The Times says: No envoy could be sent here who would be hailed with more confidence as the spokesman of the great nation. The unanimous ratification of his nomination is an unexampled testimonial that his intellect is admirably trained to discuss pending or probable issues with precision, impartiality and dignity of character, breadth of learning and charm of manners.

LISBON, June 15.—The mail steamer from Rio Janeiro brings the following intelligence:

After the bombardment of Humaita, the allies made a fierce attack on the rear of that position to gain possession of the forts of Granabaco and cut off the communication of the Paraguayans. The assault was repulsed after a desperate engagement, and the allies were compelled to relinquish the attack. The siege of Humaita still continued and the fortress is closely invested by water and land.

LONDON, June 15.—In the House of Commons, this evening, the Secretary of Foreign Affairs, Lord Stanly, said: The Egyptian Government entertained a plan for the establishment of courts of law to protect the rights of residents in Egypt of foreign birth and that the Viceroy was desirous to carry the measure into effect.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16.—The butchers, through their Attorney, have commenced suit in the Supreme Court to obtain a mandamus to compel the State Treasurer to accept their tender of one hundred and fifty dollars per acre for the tide lands near Hunter's Point, upon which they have decided to move. This valuation was fixed by the board of the State Harbor Commissioners. Gov. Haight claims that the land is worth $1,000 per acre, and therefore refuses to accept $150.

Good.

A writer in the Missouri Democrat, considering the mixed races of Mexico and Spanish America, supplies the following terse abstract of the principles of the Democratic party of the United States:

The Democratic party of the present day is an apt representation of the great ox of Prometheus, which goodly and stately on a distant view, turned out upon closer inspection to be only an immense hide filled with sticks and stubble, chips and rubbish. Professing to be Democrats, they are the sworn allies and supporters of the most haughty, the most inexorable, the most unfeeling and the worst regulated aristocracy that ever scourged an afflicted mankind. Professing to be hard money men, they are now urging the issue of thousands of millions of government paper promises to pay, for the express purpose of never being redeemed. Professing to be in favor of mercy and amnesty they are now striving day and night for the confiscation of the property of the public creditors, a measure which, except its odious cruelty, has no recommendation except its equally odious perfidy. Preaching mildness and forgiveness of injuries they cannot forego their schemes of dire vengeance on those who rushed with their hard-earned substance, in the hour of the nation's sore distress, to fill the national coffers at the imminent hazard of total loss. While for partisan purpose they are stirring up quarrels with the great powers of Europe, they are laboring with all their energies so completely to destroy the the public credit as to incapacitate the nation for resenting the basest injuries. Professing to adhere to a strict construction of the Constitution, they resort to the wildest latitudinarianism, in order to defend the conduct of its deadly and determined enemies.

HOW A SOLDIER WAS REWARDED FOR HIS SMARTNESS.—It will be remembered that shortly after the beginning of the War Department difficulty it was reported that Mosby was coming to this city with an armed force; a letter received by him from this city was published in most of the journals, who charged that it was from a Government detective here to trap Mosby, but the facts in the case are contained in an order just issued from headquarters Department of Washington, which sets forth that before a court-martial in session in this city, of which Gen. John B. Ricketts is President, Sergeant Frank Forrester, Company H, Twenty ninth Infantry, was tried upon a charge of conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline. The specification charges that he did, with intent to incite insurrection and resistance of the laws of the United States, write, and cause to be sent to one John S. Mosby, formerly an officer in the Confederate army, a letter, of which a copy is appended, in which the writer says:

> "The rumor is afloat that you are raising men to march on this city, with the intention of putting things in shape to suit yourself. If so, I glory in your undertaking. I think it a Christian act. I wish you to inform me at once if such is the case, and I will assist you in your undertaking. I was once a Colonel in the Federal army, but now only a sergeant. I have been misused, and will be avenged. Write in confidence to me; all will be right; no danger of betrayal. I will keep you posted in regard to Congress, military movements, &c." The Court found the accused guilty, and sentenced him to be reduced to the ranks, and to forfeit to the United States ten dollars per month of his monthly pay. Gen. Emory has approved the sentence, and says: "The sentence awarded is evidently founded upon the belief that the accused had no malicious intent in writing the letter contained in the charge against him, of which he has been found guilty, and that he merely intended a practical joke. Concurring in this view, the sentence is approved, and will be duly executed; and it is hoped it will serve as a warning that 'jokes' upon matter of that kind, calculated to disturb the public peace, may not be again attempted.

Cumulative evidence as to the abstemiousness and sobriety of General Grant thickens as the matter is agitated and the Drummond light of public attention is turned on his private walk and conversation. The editor of the New York Sun, Charles A. Dana, who was, during the war, on the most intimate terms with General Grant, says of the General:

> In camp, he—almost alone, among all the prominent officers of the army—never tolerated liquor or wine, either at his table or about his tent. Fatiguing marches, and the excitement and exhaustion of battle, did not make him break over his rule not to touch or taste anything alcoholic. Again and again we have seen wine offered him at public and private dinners, only to be steadily refused.

The wealth of San Francisco is assessed at $58,668,102.

[illegible] News.—We find in the Walla Walla Statesman the following news items from Colville: "Judge Wyche [illegible] Caton and Dugan has just returned from [illegible] a term of court at Colville, furnishes us the following items: Business of every kind is very dull in Colville valley, and but little money is in circulation. There are three stores now in Colville; Ferguson & Co., [illegible] & Co. and Chas. Montgomery, one saloon and [illegible] shop. Abrams of the firm of Abrams & Co., has sold out to his partners, Winans and Brown, with the [illegible] of leaving the valley within a few days, much to [illegible] of the few families there, as Mrs. Abrams is one of the few white women in the valley. There is a large [illegible] of wheat and flour in the valley, estimated at about 400,000 pounds, of which Ferguson & Co. hold nearly half. Wheat is selling from 50 to 75 cents per bushel; flour from $2 to $3 50 per 100 pounds; a lot of flour of [illegible] quality sold as low as $1 75—scarcely a [illegible] for it at any price. Stock is increasing rapidly, [illegible] of farmers having from 30 to 75 head; cattle [illegible] on foot for from 6 to 7 cents. The valley is full of hogs. Ferguson & Co. put up 25,000 pounds [illegible] pounds; commands from 20 to 25 cents per [illegible].

[illegible] gold field is supposed to exist on the tributaries of the Pend d'Oreille, and a meeting was called during court to open a trail from Colville to the Pen d'Oreille, which would require about 35 or 40 miles of work, and work was to [illegible] immediately. A party consisting of Dep. Welch, brother to Dan., Michael Sullivan, Horn-[illegible] and Mackery, went out to this region last fall, and [illegible] this spring with grub, and the reports from them are very [illegible], and other parties have gone out, and Colville [illegible] are hoping with some confidence for a [illegible] in that direction."

[illegible] Mrs. Denoille.—A Boise paper has the [illegible] of the discovery of the remains of Mrs. [illegible] who had until recently been supposed to be a [illegible] among the Indians: "Hicks, the scout, returned [illegible] from a twenty days' run through the [illegible] reports the discovery of the remains of Mrs. D[illegible], although he was unable to gather them in any shape, the wolves having scattered the bones to [illegible]. The guide with whom he started took him [illegible] the place where the Denoille party were [illegible] and showed him where they killed Mrs. Denoille. The [illegible] took with him as guide, pretended to say that he was the one who killed the poor woman. After [illegible] they dragged her by the neck some distance [illegible] then laid her head upon one stone while they [illegible] beat it into jelly. The place where [illegible] the atrocious deed was within half a mile [illegible] the party. After showing Hicks [illegible] killed Mrs. Denoille, the red devil, who appeared [illegible] killed her, endeavored to make [illegible] and was riddled by the bullets from the Indians [illegible] that Hicks had [illegible] his Indian [illegible] for the bones of the murdered woman, [illegible] guide under charge of one soldier. When he [illegible] up, the alarm was given and the Indian [illegible] immediately. While out, Hicks [illegible] enough to make two more "good Indians" [illegible] roaming about loose. They appeared to be [illegible] of the band broken up by Col. Brady a [illegible] ago.

[illegible] to Law.—At the 2d Ward polls on Monday, there were a great number of votes challenged during the day. In the afternoon, the challenges were more frequent and [illegible] that the judges, a majority, [illegible] either in ignorance or disregard of duty, admitted many of such challenged votes without requiring [illegible] offering, to take the oath prescribed by law. [illegible] to think that they acted under the im[illegible] that they had a right to admit a challenged vote [illegible] the oath, as they might choose. The law [illegible], is plain and positive. Section 13 of title 2 of the act regulating elections recites:

"[illegible] to vote shall be challenged as [illegible] by any judge or clerk of the election, or by any elector [illegible] entitled to vote at the same poll, the [illegible] to the person so challenged, the qualifications of an elector, if such person shall then state [illegible] qualified, and the challenge shall not be withdrawn, one of the judges shall then tender him the [illegible] oath: You do solemnly swear, etc. * * * But if any [illegible] so challenged shall refuse to take such [illegible] tendered, his vote shall be rejected."

This would seem to be plain enough as to the necessity of [illegible] the oath to a challenged voter. It is the [illegible] duty of both judges and clerks of election to exercise [illegible] enjoined by law, to prevent fraudu[illegible].

[illegible] July Meeting.—Pursuant to notice, a [illegible] favorable to celebrating the 4th of [illegible] held at the Council Chamber, last evening. [illegible] Northrup was elected Chairman and Jos. B. [illegible]. [illegible] gentlemen were chosen a Committee of [illegible] E. J. Ladd, E. J. Hoesbl, Chas. Hodge, [illegible] W. J. Van Schuyver, W. F. Wilcox, O. [illegible], A. H. Johnson, S. B. Parish, W. J. Leonard, [illegible] and B. F. Har[illegible]. The committee was [illegible] to fill vacancies that may occur. G. VENARD,
CHARTRES COFFEE!
Manufactory Established in June, 1851.
STEAM POWER, NOS. 625 AND 627 FRONT ST.
HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities. CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all sorts.
The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increase. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.
BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.
Each package bears the signature of G. VENARD.

Ja--- Go. [illegible] Bennett.

HIS CAREER AND PERSONAL PECULIARITIES.

[From the Chicago Tribune.]

NEW YORK, May 6.

James Gordon Bennett, the journalist, is known on both sides of the Atlantic; James Gordon Bennett, the man, is hardly known outside of the Herald office. Indeed, men who have been employed in that establishment for years have never set eyes on its famous editor and proprietor. All his power, reputation and influence exist in and through the Herald. In it, he is everything; out of it, nothing.

Probably the history of journalism in this or any other country does not show another instance of such complete absorption by any identification with a newspaper as that of Bennett and the Herald. To the Herald he has devoted most of his mature life—his best, and ripest, and richest years. All that he is and has been he has poured, with mental and physical prodigality, into the great newspaper which bears his name, and has yielded him a vast fortune for his purpose and his pains.

HIS BIRTH AND YOUTH.

Bennett was born, of Catholic parents, in 1797, in Banffshire, Scotland, and remained at school there until he was fourteen or fifteen. He was then sent to a Catholic academy at Aberdeen, with the view of taking sacerdotal orders, but after staying there for two or three years, during which time he devoted himself assiduously to his books, he became dissatisfied and resolved to surrender all priestly aspirations. His parents, said to be wealthy and influential, had set their hearts upon his leading a clerical life, and were so much opposed to his abandoning it that a rupture ensued between them and their boy, and he quitted his native land forever.

HIS CAREER IN AMERICA.

The young Scot, in 1819, in company with a companion of about his own age, embarked on a vessel coming to America, and arriving at Halifax, [illegible] friends, took to teaching for a livelihood. He did not [illegible] to his satisfaction, and in a few months went to Portland, Maine, and then to Boston, where he found employment as a proof reader in Wells & Lily's publishing house. At that time he was much addicted to solitary rambles and the exercise of his imagination. He wrote a number of poems of rather a lyrical, semi sentimental kind, suggested by his lonely walks in and about the metropolis of New England.

In 1822 he [illegible] to New York and engaged himself [illegible] of the daily and weekly papers as a reporter [illegible]. But wearying of his [illegible], he went to Charleston, S. C., [illegible] employed by the Courier as a [illegible], occasionally [illegible] to the paper. In his early [illegible] he was singularly restless, though [illegible] and of remarkable versatility [illegible]. After a year or two he returned to New York, where he undertook to set up a [illegible] failed or abandoned [illegible] his attention to [illegible] a series of lectures [illegible] the [illegible] of the old Dutch [illegible].

HIS [illegible] OF A PROFESSION.

About this time he began to entertain the idea of adopting journalism as a profession, having [illegible] that it was his vocation. In 1825 he made his first effort as a proprietor, in the [illegible] Courier, but not succeeding he became a reporter and writer for its columns. He left the paper, however, in a few months, started the [illegible] Advocate, a Democratic journal, and [illegible] the system of banking. In 1827 he became a warm advocate of Martin Van Buren, at that [illegible], and, on the decease of the Advocate, he associated himself with [illegible] in the editorial management of the [illegible], then in the Tammany Hall interest. [illegible] he went to Washington as correspondent [illegible], and [illegible] serving faithfully and zealously in that capacity for about twelve months, he became the associate editor of the [illegible], and [illegible], the two journals having been merged into one. [illegible] in that capacity two or three years, he quarreled with James Watson Webb, the leading editor, went out of the [illegible] and started the Daily Globe. The new paper lived [illegible] month and expired. It did not require [illegible] capital to conduct a paper [illegible] thirty-five years ago, even in the metropolis, but the [illegible] required for such enterprise [illegible] it to [illegible].

[illegible], then in his thirty-fifth year, had been [illegible] with at [illegible] papers in different [illegible], and had been anything but prosperous. Those who knew him [illegible] he had mistaken his calling; but [illegible] displayed ability and [illegible] lacked tact and managing power. He, however, retained faith in himself, and was wont to say he had never got started right. He constantly [illegible] having a paper of his own [illegible] he felt sure [illegible] be a great success. It is quite likely he had become somewhat [illegible] by his failures here, for he went to Philadelphia in the latter part of 1832, raised [illegible] to purchase the Pennsylvanian, and [illegible] editorial charge of it. The city was not [illegible] for him, and he still believed New York to be the best place for him to fix the lever with which he [illegible] to move the American world.

THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE HERALD.

[illegible] after two years of residence on [illegible], he [illegible] back to the Hudson, and in 1835 [illegible] the first number of the Herald.

[illegible] had [illegible] little money, only a few hundred [illegible], it is said, and that borrowed—when [illegible] in the basement of a [illegible] not far from where the [illegible] rears its costly head. His editorial desk was a [illegible] across two barrels, and, on this he [illegible], for the first few [illegible] filling the [illegible] with [illegible] the gossip, pungent paragraphs, city sketches, and such light and [illegible] matter as the public always like to [illegible].

[illegible] of the Herald [illegible] the [illegible] was entirely [illegible] feature of [illegible] which he had no [illegible] and [illegible] Advocate [illegible] Journal of Commerce were [illegible] of the [illegible] nothing to [illegible] the [illegible] had opened.

[illegible] the birth of the [illegible] opportunity to [illegible] his enterprise, and he embraced it vigorously. The following morning the little daily [illegible] a full [illegible] of the destructive con[illegible] would call it, with full [illegible] given in a picturesque [illegible] style. That was really, as the Herald is fond of stating, a new era in journalism [illegible] from that day to this, [illegible] as a newspaper, it has probably had no equal anywhere.

THE MAN AND THE PAPER.

Bennett the man is Bennett the journalist. He has [illegible] fifty and all his idiosyncrasies into it. [illegible] the Herald [illegible] the little part of [illegible]; and yet hardly any one denies its tact and enterprise. [illegible] no pretension, [illegible] public opinion; he follows it. He is inconsistent, because it is his interest; for his avowed object has been from the first to make money. Principle he has not, because he believes in no one. He has no convictions, and [illegible] think any one has them. Nothing, in his view, [illegible] serious or sacred. All men and all pursuits are shams. One thing is no better than another, and we are all selfish to the core when found out.

[illegible] stands the philosophy of journalism, that a newspaper is entirely a thing of to day; that [illegible] care for the [illegible] of yesterday or to-morrow, which are as if they had never been. [illegible] every number of the Herald as if there had been none before, and would be none after it. He believes with Emerson that "Consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds," and acts accordingly.

HIS PRIVATE LIFE.

Privately Bennett is a very honest and strictly moral man. He owes no one, and so far as I can learn, [illegible] paying his debts having always been with him the first of obligations. He was never other than industrious and abstemious, and is said to be very charitable without the least ostentation. Ever since his marriage, which was, I [illegible], in 1837, he has been a pattern of domesticity; is extremely devoted to his wife, a highly accomplished woman, and his two children, James Gordon, Jr., the manager of the Herald, and his daughter Lily, a promising girl of sixteen. He has a very handsome home at Washington Heights, and a fine private residence in Fifth avenue. His income from the [illegible] is $300,000 per annum, and his fortune is estimated at $3,000,000 or $4,000,000, every penny of which he has made by his journal. He is, and always has been, the opposite of gregarious. He never went into society, and the sole instance I can remember of his presence at any festival or public [illegible], was at the Sir Morton Peto dinner at Delmonico's in the autumn of 1865. Then he seemed quite lost and ill at ease. He did not [illegible] to know any one, nor any one to know him.

When sought, he is affable enough, but talks little, and has no relish for society of any kind.

Personally he is over six feet in height, but is now bent with age. He is rather slight, his eye gray, his hair light and worn rather long, with a strange, half cynical, half comical expression, which makes his countenance difficult to read. He still speaks with a strong Scotch accent, which is very marked when he is irritated, and his irritation has increased with his years. His intellect is clear and vigorous, and his acquirements numerous. He writes nothing in these days; but in his working period he wrote rapidly, nervously and gracefully on almost any subject; the skepticism, cynicism and raillery of his temperament always cropping out.

Of late years Bennett has shown signs of declining health. He takes excellent care of himself however, going to bed every night at nine o'clock. He visits the Herald only two or three times a week, but is still in every respect its editor, and feels as much interest in it as when he toiled to establish it.

Bennett has few friends—he does not want them, I suspect—no hopes and no ambitions outside of the Herald. He has often said his chief desire was to make his journal the great newspaper of America, and to publish it for money. In that he has been successful. He cannot live much longer, but while he does, he will be its autocrat and master mind; and his last hours will doubtless be comforted with the thought that James Gordon Bennett was to the very last the editor and proprietor of the New York Herald.

A THRILLING INCIDENT

In the mission life of Mrs. Ingalls, in Burmah, is well told in the "Baptist Messenger," relating how she was sent for to visit one of the Buddist high priests, who had been nearly killed; and how, while in the most holy place in their temple, where none but the priests had ever before been admitted, she was permitted unrebuked to use for him the sacred vessels, which none but the high priest dare touch, and to even overturn and sit on one of their gods to rest; all through the magic influence of the Pain Killer, called by them the "God medicine," so successfully had she used it in curing their many diseases, some of them considered heretofore fatal in that climate, [illegible] which were cholera, liver complaint, dysp[illegible], the bites of venomous reptiles, &c. This speaks [illegible] for the Pain Killer.—London Times.

Rev. J. E. Clough, Missionary at Ongole, Southern India, writes:—"We esteem your Pain Killer very highly for scorpion stings, cholera, &c., and cannot very well get along without it."

HIRAM SMITH'S
Ophthalmic Panacea!

IS WITHOUT DOUBT THE MOST WONDERFUL EYE HEALER that has yet been discovered.
It CURES the most stubborn and hopeless cases of CHRONIC INFLAMMATIONS, GRANULATED LIDS, FILMS, &c., as has been sufficiently demonstrated during the few months in which it has been brought into public notice. The proprietor is so fully convinced of its INFALIBILITY that he WARRANTS A CURE OR REFUNDS THE MONEY. It can do the eyes no harm, and a trial of it is therefore without injury or expense to the patient if a cure is not effected.
It has cured cases of FIVE, SIX, NINE, FIFTEEN, and even EIGHTEEN YEARS' standing in Harrisburg, Linn county, Oregon, and its vicinity, to which the following persons will bear witness:

E. B. MOORE,	NATHANIEL BELL,
A. L. WALLACE,	G. R. WARD,
Mrs. MONTGOMERY,	JOHN M. HOLLOWAY,
W. D. PORTER,	ROB'T RAMSEY,

And others in that vicinity.
Persons afflicted with the distressing scourge of diseased eyes are advised to give this remedy a fair trial on the NO CURE, NO PAY and NO INJURY plan.

PACIFIC TURBINE WATER WHEEL.

THESE WHEELS EXCEL ANY OTHER WHEEL in use, and are no infringement on the Leffel American Turbine, but excel it in every particular.

CAUTION.

To all whom it may concern:—One A. Myers is publishing and circulating a statement that my wheel is an infringement on the Leffel wheel, and he will "prosecute said infringement to the utmost extent of the law." His statements are not worth a dimal. His game is "Bluff," which, if he would only take the case to Court, would soon be played out. Don't believe him!
I would be glad to get a case into the United States Court and get a decision. That would forever stop the mouth of Myers and his misrepresentations. The legal opinions of more reputable lawyers than Dodge & Munn and A. Myers have pronounced my patents no infringement on the American Turbine. H. W. SHIPLEY.

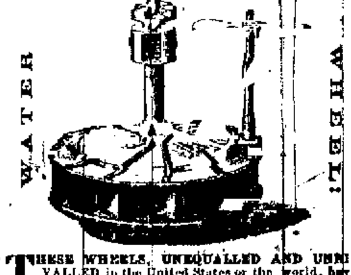
LEFFEL'S
AMERICAN DOUBLE TURBINE



THESE WHEELS, UNEQUALLED AND UNRIVALLED in the United States or the world, have been fully tested on this coast, many being in use at this date, driving all kinds of machinery, Saw Mills, Flour Mills, Quartz Mills, Woolen Factories, &c., &c.

CAUTION.

To all whom it may concern: I hereby give notice that the so-called "Shipley's Pacific Turbine Water Wheel" is a direct infringement and copy of the "James Leffel's American Double Turbine Water Wheel," and its manufacture and use is hereby prohibited. Any person or persons making, using, constructing or vending said Water Wheels make themselves liable to heavy damages and penalties. Parties interested will take notice, for I shall prosecute said infringements to the utmost extent of the law.
That all may know I mean what I say, and am not playing "bluff," I give the following extract from a legal opinion on this subject from one of the most eminent Patent Attorneys in the United States.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 17, 1868.

"MR. A. MYERS—In accordance with your request, we have examined the patents of Shipley on Water Wheels, and are clearly of the opinion that they both infringe the Leffel's patents. In both of Shipley's Wheels he uses the upper and lower tiers of buckets precisely as Leffel does, and in this he clearly infringes. The fact that Shipley has applied another series of buckets in addition to those used by Leffel, does not relieve him from the consequences of infringement at all. He has no right to use those two tiers of buckets, whether alone or with a third, or any other number of tiers added. It is a clear infringement. Respectfully yours,
DODGE & MUNN.

I hereby give notice that I will prosecute every infringement on our Patents, whether it is the maker, user, buyer or seller. Every infringement, whether our claims be used in whole or in part, will be prosecuted.
A. MYERS.

Medical.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.
NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES
Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

616 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies; see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of these charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal [illegible], the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them nor delay to obtain immediate relief.
DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to a[illegible] radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders, who, with bogus sworn-to certificates, dupe the unwary. Some of the self-styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are tradesmen, and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. Look over the San Francisco Directory, and you will not find their Medical Institutes in it; but you will find their former occupations in it. Look at the Directory for 1862 and 1863. The only way to avoid imposition is to make enquiry—it will cost you nothing, and may save you many regrets; for, as advertising physicians, in eight cases out of ten, are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not desire people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended patient's letters, etc. Dr. Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his office of his ability to treat diseases that he proposes to cure.
Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 616 Kearney st. [illegible], corner Commercial, San Francisco. Post Office Box 252.
REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 252 ON THE LETTER.
